Teenagers face a lot of pressure when it comes to exams. Exam stress can be more than feeling nervous on the day of an exam. It can also be how you feel building up to exams, during exams and when waiting for results. Exam stress can not only result in physical symptoms like headaches, fatigue, or loss of appetite, but also create mental and emotional effects such as anxiety, depression, or sleeplessness. Moreover, it can negatively affect their academic performance. Causes of exam stress can arise from within, such as fear of failure, lack of preparation, or from external sources like parents or teachers.

However, maintaining a balanced and healthy lifestyle can be a good way to manage exam stress. It's important that teenagers get plenty of sleep, have regular study breaks, and make time for relaxation and exercise. Parents also have a crucial role to play by providing support, and encouragement. Teachers can help by giving students study tips and techniques that can help them prepare for exams. In conclusion, while experiencing exam stress is normal, the effects can be serious and long-lasting. Finding healthy ways to cope with stress and seeking help or guidance when needed can make all the difference for teenagers.

23. Exam stress mostly happens on the day of the exam.

24. Exam stress can be caused by factors both within and outside of the student.

25. To reduce exam stress, students should engage in relaxation and exercise.
