

Today thousands of young people (0) communicate with each other on social websites such as MySpace and Bebo. (1) _____ of them have web pages with background designs by Kimberley Brown. Anyone can (2) _____ these unusual and attractive designs from Kimberley's website, friendsforever.com, which (3) _____ quickly becoming one of the most popular sites on the internet.

17-year-old Kimberley already earns enough to (4) _____ her mother as her financial manager, and she is also training three former classmates to (5) _____ designs for her. Kimberley's parents and teachers are proud of her (6) _____ although they were shocked at (7) _____ when she gave up high school to concentrate on friendsforever.com.

Now however, Kimberley is studying for a degree at her (8) _____ college. She always refuses invitations to appear on radio or TV. 'I (9) _____ be a successful businesswoman,' she says, 'but at the moment I want to enjoy my free time with my friends, (10) _____ any other teenager.'

