B. Franscombe

C. Barmouth Beach

This beach often has displays of animals and birds - skillfully made from sand, which you can also learn how to do. It's also the perfect place for lying in the sun or why not explore the beach paths on foot for an hour or two? The views are fantastic.

D. Westley Beach

There are distance swimming, sailing and surfing sessions for people of all levels and the beach is also famous for sculptures made of sand, which artists display every weekend! It's easily reached from the car park through a lovely wood, which you can explore on foot when it gets cooler.

E. Minton Strand

This beach has a sea temperature slightly higher than other coastal areas and with its gentle waves, it's perfect for children. There's plenty to do, too, with play leaders offering the game to entertain younger ones, and surfing and sailing available at all levels, including beginners. The snack bar is excellent, too.

H. Maple Sands

Adults keen on horses love this beach, with its daily riding sessions. At certain times, the sea leaves warm-water pools on the beach, perfect for children to play in, but the water further out is deeper, for more challenging swimming. And the teenagers' beach club offers group activities, like making sand sculptures - great for making new friends!

Coasteering

Lily Carter had no idea what present she wanted for her 14th birthday. But she'd always been keen on challenging sports, especially to do with water, like surfing and sailing. So when her parents heard about an activity called coasteering - exploring rocks along the coast by climbing and swimming - they thought Lily would love it. They found a course offered at an activity center called Porthdean, just along the coast from the family home, which was perfect. So after checking it was led by experienced instructors, they signed her up.

Lily had seen a TV show about coasteering and was interested in doing it, although she'd thought only adults could take part. But then she discovered that on courses at Porthdean, there'd also be people her age jumping from rocks into the sea, and also exploring caves - which she was never normally allowed to do, so she really wanted to go. But she still asked her dad to go along too and, although he wondered whether he'd like coasteering himself, he knew how much Lily wanted someone to accompany her, so he agreed.

Lily and her dad drove to Porthdean, where they attended a session with their instructors to learn basic safety and techniques and be given helmets and special wetsuits to keep the cold out. The group they joined was quite small, which meant they got lots of individual attention. Says Lily, "The entire trip was awesome although the water was freezing! But our instructors encouraged the whole group so much, we were ready to try absolutely all the challenges, even stuff we hadn't expected at all, like jumping off high cliffs! I must admit, the one I jumped off wasn't that high, but Dad went much higher!"

"Anyway, Dad and I hadn't realized how hard it would be physically, so we were glad we were fit," explains Lily. "Even so, afterward, we actually felt like we'd done loads of hard exercise in the gym! But I'll keep the memories of that trip forever, I reckon. And the instructors are going to put a video of it on to the website, so my friends will see it. They'd never believe me otherwise!"

Question 12 (Question ID: 99-128775)

A new way of making electricity

Ever since the 19th century, when people were developing different ways of creating electricity, companies have looked for improved ways of producing power, using cleaner and more efficient methods. Now a UK company called Pavegen has been working on technology that could be widely used in the future to produce electricity. Q12.1..... The company has developed a special type of floor, made of square tiles. Underneath each square, there's a system that can produce a certain amount of electricity very cheaply - from the energy created every time someone steps on it!

The creator of the floor, Laurence Kemball-Cook, came up with the idea when he was a student and did some work experience with an energy company. The company asked him to investigate ways of providing street lighting in the city centers, using energy from the sun to produce electricity. Q12.2..... One reason was that many city centers don't get enough sunlight, because of all the tall buildings. Then he thought of a better plan. Q12.3..... The right technology could be used to convert this energy into electricity - right under people's feet!

The design of the floor is actually extremely effective. Q12.4..... And the reason is that a lot of energy is produced simply because of the large numbers of people walking across the floor. In fact, the special squares are already in place in several locations with high numbers of pedestrians. These include big department stores and also an airport. The flooring can have other uses too, such as recording how many people visit a shopping center at particular times. Q12.5..... For example, shop owners in the center would be interested in knowing at which times of days they have the highest customer numbers. So the next time you visit a big shopping center, have a careful look at the floor that you're walking across!

Colouring books

Many people probably used to spend time adding color to pictures in coloring books when they were children. However, once people get older, very few of them continue with the hobby. Instead, they Q13.1..... their crayons away in the cupboard forever.

However, psychology researchers now think that even for adults, Q13.2..... as little as ten minutes a day coloring pictures in this way can bring huge Q13.3..... For example, some people say that it improves their Q13.4..... for a while by making them feel more cheerful and generally calmer.

One reason for this may be that other activities Q13.5..... with art, such as drawing or painting, can actually be quite stressful, especially if you don't feel very successful at it. But adding color to a picture that's already drawn for you Q13.6..... only a low level of skill, so you can relax rather than becoming anxious about it!
