First Time in the Air

When John Mills was going to fly in an aeroplane for the first time, he was frightened. He did not like the idea of being thousands of feet up in the air. "I also didn't like the fact that I wouldn't be in control," says John. "I am a terrible passenger in the car. When somebody else is driving, I tell them what to do. It drives everybody crazy."

However, John couldn't avoid flying any longer. It was the only way he could visit his grandchildren in Canada. "I had made up my mind that I was going to do it. I couldn't let my son, his wife and their three children travel all the way here to visit me. It would be so expensive for them and I know Tom's business isn't doing so well at the moment. It would also be tiring for the children - it's a nine-hour flight!" he says.

To get ready for the flight John did lots of reading about aeroplanes. When he booked his seat, he was told that he would be flying on a Boeing 747, which is better known as a jumbo jet. "I needed to know as much as possible before getting on that plane. I suppose it was a way of making myself feel better. The Boeing 747 is the largest passenger aircraft in the world at the moment. The first one flew on 9th February 1969 in the USA. It can carry up to 524 passengers and 3,400 pieces of luggage. The fuel for aeroplanes is kept in the wings and the 747's wings are so big that they can carry enough fuel for an average car to be able to travel 16,000 kilometres a year for 70 years. Isn't that unbelievable? Even though I had discovered all this very interesting information about the jumbo, when I saw it for the first time, just before I was going to travel to Canada, I still couldn't believe that something so enormous was going to get up in the air and fly. I was even more impressed when I saw how big it was inside with hundreds of people!"

The biggest surprise of all for John was the flight itself. "The take-off itself was much smoother than I expected, although I was still quite scared until we were in the air. In the end, I managed to relax, enjoy the food and watch one of the movies and the view from the window was spectacular. I even managed to sleep for a while! Of course," continues John, "the best reward of all was when I arrived in Canada and saw my son and his family, particularly my beautiful grandchildren. Suddenly, I felt so silly about all the years when I couldn't even think of getting on a plane. I had let my fear of flying stop me from seeing the people I love most in the world. I can visit my son and his family as often as I like now!"

Question 12 (Question ID: 99-145483)

Night School

Night school offers the same classes as regular secondary school except during evening hours. This evening programme allows students to continue working during the day and study at night.

Q12.1..... In most of them, formal schooling is compulsory until the age of 16 or 18, so young people who find themselves in need of work or have other important daytime obligations can finish their studies. For many people, it's the right choice.

Courses at night school are usually the same as those taught during the day. They are generally held in the same buildings, too. Q12.2..... The only difference is that night school students go to school later!

Michael is a 17-year-old boy who works during the day on his family's organic farm. Q12.3..... Michael's father runs the farm now, but one day it will be Michael's responsibility, which is why he needs to learn as much as he can about the business. Since he didn't want to stop his schooling in order to work, he enrolled in night school. "It was a bit strange at first," he says, "working all day then going to school in the evening, but I soon got used to it."

Not everyone, of course, thinks that night school is the answer. Q12.4..... Take David for example. He's a teenager who tried going to night school for a while so he could train as a carpenter with his uncle during the day. "I was so tired after working all day that I didn't have the energy to go to school!" David decided to work part-time on weekends and finish school during the day.

Parents might also object to night school. Q12.5..... Meg is a teenager who wanted to leave school to take up a career in modeling. "Mum and Dad thought I would never finish school that way. My parents think working and going to night school is too difficult for someone at my age." For most of the students who do enroll, however, night school is the answer they've been looking for. It is a challenge to balance work and school, and it's definitely not for everyone. But those who go to night school are really making the most of their time - day and night!

Question 13 (Question ID: 99-120057)

Read and choose the best answer for each space.

Lights! Camera! Action!

Which country has the largest film industry in the world? If you think it's the USA, you're wrong. The answer is, in fact, India. Nearly 3,000 films were Q13.1..... in India in 2009, around 1,300 of which were full-length feature films.

The most popular films are action, comedy and romantic musicals. The musicals are Q13.2..... productions full of colourful costumes and scenery with huge casts, including many dancers and singers. Imagine, one Indian film had seventy-one songs in it! That's a lot of Q13.3..... to remember!

Film critics say that most of these films tend to be predictable Q13.4..... they have very similar situations, but it seems that the public doesn't mind at all. In fact, millions of people both in India and the rest of the world are huge fans and can't wait for new films to be Q13.5.....

Indian cinema is often referred to as 'Bollywood', but it turns Q13.6..... that the term is only correct for Hindi-language films; there are many other languages spoken in India. The name 'Bollywood' is a combination of Bombay (the city now called Mumbai) and Hollywood, but Bollywood isn't a real place.

So if you're ever in India, don't try to find it!

Question 14 (Question ID: 99-145531)

Read the text and write the missing words. Write one word on each blank.

Losing

The aim of most games is (0) win, and we'd all Q14.1..... win than lose. Winning is fine, of course, but whenever there's a winner there's always a loser, and losing is not usually very pleasant. It's important to deal Q14.2..... losing in the right way. It's not very helpful just to think "They Q14.3..... have been very lucky to win," as this removes all responsibility from us. Similarly, if we just say, "I wish I Q14.4..... a better player," we're not focusing on how to become that better player.

Losing can be helpful, though, if we Q14.5..... into the causes of why we lost. It can help us improve. It's useful to think about your performance in terms of what you have done differently. We can avoid Q14.6..... the same mistakes if we say to ourselves things like: "I ought to have attacked earlier," or "I would have scored that goal if I'd run a little bit faster."
