Planning a Simple Role-Play Dialogue

Student(s): _____	Grade/Section: _____	Date: _____

PURPOSE	Plan and write a short dialogue to solve a school conflict using advice (should / shouldn't) and a real future consequence (First Conditional).

1. CHOOSE A SITUATION - Circle one.

1. A disagreement in a group project.	2. A problem caused by social media.	3. A misunderstanding between friends.
4. A conflict during a sports game.	5. A student feels left out.	6. Problems sharing school materials.

2. REMEMBER THE LANGUAGE - Use these phrases to build your dialogue.

GIVING ADVICE	FEELINGS & POLITE PHRASES	FIRST CONDITIONAL
You should talk to him/her.	I'm sorry.	If we talk calmly, we will solve the problem.
You shouldn't ignore your friend.	I understand how you feel.	If you apologize, your friend will feel better.
You should apologize.	Please, listen to me.	If we work together, we will finish the project.
You shouldn't fight.	That's a good idea.	If you share the materials, everyone will participate.

3. LOOK AT THE MODEL - Follow the structure.

A	Hey, Ana. You look upset. What happened?
B	I'm upset because my friend ignored me.
A	I think you should talk to her. You shouldn't stay angry.
B	You're right. I will talk to her.
A	If you talk calmly, you will solve the problem.
B	That's a good idea. I will apologize too.
A	Great! I hope everything gets better.

_____

7. READY FOR NEXT CLASS? - Check your dialogue.

☐	My dialogue has a clear conflict situation.
☐	I used should or shouldn't to give advice.
☐	I used at least one First Conditional sentence.
☐	My characters propose a solution or make a commitment.
☐	I can practice the dialogue with my partner/group.

Goal: Leave class with a complete dialogue ready to rehearse in the next lesson.
