

LIFE IN THE 90'S AND TODAY

Instructions: Read each conversation carefully. Complete each gap with still or anymore.

CONVERSATION 1

Sofia: How did people communicate with friends and family in the 1990s?

Daniel: They often called people on the telephone or sent letters.

Sofia: Do people _____ call their family on the telephone today?

Daniel: Yes, they do. My grandparents _____ call me every Sunday.

Sofia: What about letters? Do people write letters _____?

Daniel: Some people do, but most people don't write letters _____.

They usually send messages.

Sofia: Do people _____ send postcards when they travel?

Daniel: Yes, some people _____ send them, but fewer people do it now.

Sofia: Text messages are much faster than letters.

CONVERSATION 2

Carlos: What did teenagers do for entertainment in the 1990s?

Megan: They watched television, listened to CDs, rented movies, and played video games.

Carlos: Do people _____ watch television today?

Megan: Yes, they do. My family _____ watches TV together in the evening.

Carlos: Do people rent movies from video stores _____?

Megan: No, people don't rent movies from video stores _____. Most people stream movies at home.

Carlos: What about CDs? Do people buy CDs _____?

Megan: Some music fans do, but most people don't buy CDs _____. They usually listen to music online.

Carlos: Do teenagers _____ go to movie theaters?

Megan: Yes, they do. Going to the movies is still a popular activity.

Carlos: What about recording songs from the radio on cassette tapes?

Megan: People don't do that _____.

Carlos: So, some forms of entertainment are still popular, but several activities from the 1990s are not common anymore.

