

Work in pairs. Look at the examiner's instructions and the question and photos below. Then discuss what you can say to compare them.

"Here are your photographs. They show people doing different activities in their free time. I'd like you to compare the photographs, and say how you think the people can benefit from spending their free time doing these different activities."

How can the people benefit from spending their free time doing these different activities?

2

Listen to a candidate called Marta answering the question from Exercise 1. According to Marta, how can people benefit from each activity?

3 Listen again and tick the checklist.

Marta	yes	no
1 introduces her talk
2 describes each photo in detail
3 deals with each photo in turn
4 spends most of the time answering the printed question
5 refers to the first photo when talking about the second photo
6 talks about things not connected with the question
7 speaks until the examiner says 'Thank you'.

4 Try to remember the words and phrases Marta used in these sentences to structure her answer. Then listen again and check.

- 1 , there are two women playing video games.
- 2 this in several ways.
- 3 , they're laughing, which is always good for you because it helps you to relax.
- 4 , they're having fun together, which is important because it builds up their social relationship and their friendship.
- 5 , it's good to see these women doing something which is traditionally seen as a male activity.
- 6 it looks like they are just doing it as a leisure activity rather than a race.

Change partners and take turns to do the Speaking Part 2 task in (Speaking) Exercise 1.

- Try to speak for a minute.
- Try to use some of the words and phrases from (Speaking) Exercise 4.
- Use your own ideas and Marta's ideas.
- While you are listening to your partner, use the checklist in (Speaking) Exercise 3 and give feedback when your partner has finished.

Work in pairs and take turns to do this Speaking Part 2 task.

"Here are your photographs. They show people doing different free-time activities.

Compare the photographs, and say what you think the people enjoy about doing these different activities."

What do the people enjoy about doing these different activities?
