Part 6 Gapped text

You are going to read a magazine article about a new fitness and diet. Six sentences have been removed from the article. Choose from the sentences A–G the one which fits each gap (1–6). There is one extra sentence which you do not need to use.

Get fit in 28 days

'We're going to turn right, is it right? Here, just where these cars are going. Yeah, go on.' Dusk is falling and Sally Gunnell is being driven back home after a day-long photo shoot. Such is the ceaseless pace at which her life moves that this short journey is almost the only free time she has had all week.

When she is not travelling up and down the motorways of Britain on her motivational speaking tours, she is looking after her three children, undertaking promotional work or appearing on television. 1 However, she shows few signs of slowing down. 'A lot of what I do now is being a taxi service,' she says with a smile.

So the first thing I want to know is where on earth she found the time to put together a fitness and diet programme, giving you the chance to train like an Olympic champion. 'I always say I'm like everybody else now,' she says. 2 'I think it's about finding something that you enjoy. If you've only got five minutes, you'll be better off doing some sit-ups rather than doing nothing at all. You're better off adapting fitness to your lifestyle in this way. If you want to perform better at work, if you want to deal with stress and day-to-day living, fitness is a key part of it.'

Just as she uses motivational speaking to unlock people's potential in the workplace, Gunnell is passionate about spreading the word about healthy living. 'People always say to me: "I feel so stressed because I can't get this done, I can't think straight," and they might have all sorts of aches and pains. But often, the amount of energy you have in a day is linked back to lack of exercise or what you're eating or not eating.' 3 'Whatever you're trying to achieve, whether it's trying to be a better mum, or performing to your highest ability at work, it often does come back to how you feel about yourself.'

So as well as slotting into the hectic lifestyle, Gunnell believes exercises in her fitness plan will suit people of all ages and shapes. 'I always think that with exercise there's no quick fix or secret remedy. It's often just something that fits in with what you can do at home.' Practicality is a primary objective. 4

5 'I was an athlete from the age of 14 to the age of 31, and it was very demanding. When I retired, it was nice to choose what I wanted to do. I could go running, or go to the gym. I thought, "Wow, this is great."'

So, do people still expect her to be a finely sculpted athlete? 'Sometimes they do,' she says. 6 'I still have to work at it. I still have to watch what I eat, and I know how it affects my mood. If I ate everything, I'd put on loads of weight.'

- A It's a matter of self-maintenance, she believes, which can have a beneficial effect in every area of your life.
- B But then you get chatting to people and they realise that you're like everybody else, really.
- C For Gunnell, the idea of determining her own fitness programme after two decades of being told what to do and when by athletics coaches brought its own sense of freedom.
- D I'm trying to balance being a mum and working, and just trying to build fitness into my life.
- E With this in mind, the exercises have been very well designed for different levels and abilities.
- F If they see you going out of the door and going for a run, or going to the gym, you make it a culture within the family.
- G The golden girl of British athletics in the 1990s retired from the track more than 15 years ago.

Writing

Part 2 Informal letter

This is part of a letter you receive from your English friend, Max.

I've been thinking about changing some of my lifestyle habits. There are many things that I think I could do, but I'm mostly interested in becoming a vegetarian. I know you've been a vegetarian for years and was wondering why you became one. Can you also give me any advice?

Thanks,
Max

Write your letter in 140–190 words in an appropriate style.
