Last month, I had an important English exam. I decided not to ¹ put off studying (as I normally do!) and got up early every morning to ² get down to work straight away. I'm a 'morning person' and I ³ got a lot out of my revision sessions. I always began by ⁴ going over a practice test I had done - checking my answers and ⁵ finding out what things I'd got wrong. I also tried to ⁶ work out why I'd made mistakes. If I didn't understand something, I'd ⁷ write it down and then ⁸ bring it up in class with my teacher. She was very helpful and she ⁹ went through all of the things that would probably ¹⁰ come up in the exam. In the end, the exam wasn't so bad after all and I think I ¹¹ got through it. Mind you, I still haven't had my results yet!
