READING 1. MARIE CURIE – A COURAGEOUS SCIENTIST

Marie Curie was born in Warsaw, Poland, in 1867. Her family valued education, but life was not easy. At that time, women had limited opportunities to study at universities in Poland. Marie was ambitious and had a strong passion for science, so she moved to Paris to continue her education. She studied physics and mathematics at the Sorbonne. There, she met Pierre Curie, a scientist who later became her husband and research partner. Together, they investigated radioactivity and discovered two new elements: polonium and radium. Their work made an important contribution to science. Marie became the first woman to win a Nobel Prize and the first person to win Nobel Prizes in two different scientific fields. Despite many challenges, she continued her research with a determined mindset. Her life story shows how courage and hard work can help people achieve great goals.

READING 2. ALBERT EINSTEIN – A CREATIVE MIND

Albert Einstein was born in Ulm, Germany, in 1879. As a child, he was curious about the world and enjoyed asking questions. He did not always do well in every school subject, but he had a special interest in mathematics and physics. After studying in Switzerland, he worked at a patent office. In his free time, he continued thinking about scientific problems. In 1905, often called his “miracle year”, he published several important scientific papers, including one about the special theory of relativity. His ideas later influenced modern physics and changed the way people understand space, time, and energy. Einstein received the Nobel Prize in Physics in 1921 for his explanation of the photoelectric effect. He also spoke out for peace and encouraged people to use knowledge responsibly. Although he became a world-famous scientist, he remained interested in learning throughout his life. His story reminds us that curiosity, patience, and a positive mindset are important for achievement.
