3. Read and choose.

In many countries, there're four seasons in the year. These are called spring, summer, autumn and winter. Each season is about three months long and then, a new season comes.

In March, the weather gets warmer. Plants and flowers start to grow again. This season is called spring.

In the north of our planet, summer is usually in June. It's the hottest time of the year and it sometimes doesn't get dark until 10 o'clock at night.

In September, the weather starts to get cooler, and the days become shorter. The leaves on the trees slowly turn yellow, orange and red before falling to the ground. Children can collect colourful leaves and play outside. This season is called autumn.

Winter begins in December. A lot of countries have snow. On some winter days, it gets dark at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, so the days are short and the nights are long.
