

Freddie Mercury

Freddie Mercury (born Farrokh Bulsara; 5 September 1946) was a British singer, songwriter, record producer, and lead singer of the rock band Queen.

Regarded as one of the greatest lead singers in the history of rock music, he was known for his unique personality.

He formed Queen in 1970 with guitarist Brian May, bassist John Deacon and drummer Roger Taylor and occasionally served as a producer and guest musician for other artists.

Mercury wrote numerous hits for Queen, including "Bohemian Rhapsody", "Killer Queen", "Somebody to Love", "Don't Stop Me Now", "Crazy Little Thing Called Love", and "We Are the Champions". All these songs are still popular around the globe.

Freddie Mercury died in 1991 at age 45 due to complications from a serious illness.

In 1992, he was awarded the Brit Award for Outstanding Contribution to British Music, and a tribute concert was held at Wembley Stadium, London.

He is consistently voted one of the greatest singers in the history of popular music.
