Posting and Sharing Materials on Wikis and Blogs

What is a wiki?

This is a website that is collaborative in nature. It means that a user or anyone using this website can participate or work jointly with a creator or author of a written work in a wiki. To work jointly means one can add, modify, edit, delete, or update some of the content of the work of the creator or author of that work.

The term wiki was originally named Wiki wiki web. This was introduced by Ward Cunningham in 1995. This word came from the Hawaiian "Wiki wiki" which means fast or swift.

What is a blog?

A blog is a type of website in the Internet which also goes by the name of weblog. This type of website contains writers who tell about their personal experiences, their thoughts, feelings, ideas, opinions, and observations about certain places, things, or issues they have been involved in.
