It seemed like suddenly everybody at school talked - was talking about perfumes. Brand names flew - were flying around constantly and the latest bottle promoted by an actress or singer was tried out. I therefore decided - was deciding it was time for me to find that one perfume that s suited - was suiting me, that screamed - was screaming my name and practically begged - was begging me to wear it. So I began - was beginning a quest, taking me from beauty stores to airport duty-free lounges and friends' closets. I tried - was trying out anything claiming to be perfume or eau-de-toilette, but everything seemed - was seeming to be wrong; each and every bottle smelled - was smelling like pure alcohol to me. I even extended - was extending my search to different countries, and that's when it happened - was happening. I visited - was visiting my uncle and aunt in England when they suggested - were suggesting we go on a shopping spree to buy presents for my family back home. We entered - were entering a popular department store, and while my aunt searched - was searching around for suitable gifts, I sniffed - was sniffing bottles in the perfume department. I finally opened - was opening a bottle that smelled like spring, fruit and flowers. I quickly ran - was running to my aunt and said - was saying: "This is the perfume of my dreams!" She turned - was turning around the bottle in her hands and read - was reading the label: Room Freshener!
