

CONJUNCTIONS

AND is used to join two events

- The subject of the event is the same

Example.: He sat down and had lunch.

- The subject of the event is different, we put a comma before and.

Ex.: She got up, and he cooked breakfast.

- Sheila is very kind and is my friend. (we expect the second idea)

BUT is used to connect events when we do not expect the second event.

- When the subject of the event is the same, we don't repeat the subject.
They ran but missed the train.
- When the subject of the events is different, we put a comma before but.
Julia can drive, but Sonia can't
- Lucy was very tall but she wasn't nice. (we don't expect the second idea)

Complete the sentences with AND or BUT. (sometimes both are possible)

- I like apples I don't like bananas.
- I love Italian food I eat pasta every day.
- They are from Erzincan they didn't go there before.
- Helen bought an iPod she didn't use it.
- Mary loves swimming she often goes to the pool.
- He hasn't got much money he goes to a good school.
- He doesn't look very strong he can lift 100kg.
- You were very tired you enjoyed at the party.
- Tom wasn't very happy he came to the festival.
- Gerald has never been to China he speaks Chinese.
- My mother parked the car entered the chemist.
- Lina can cook her brother can't.
- It was raining it wasn't cold.
- My grandfather grows lettuces he never eats them.
- Steve loves plants he doesn't like animals.