TV RESEARCHER

Her name is Rita

She is going to talk about a day at work.

She works for a program since she's always been interested in animal science in particular.

She has two degrees, one in Biology and the other in

The degree subjects she has studied are invaluable because they help her decide which animals to film, how they can be found and

She did a course in Media Studies, which has prepared her for her television work.

Her job has taken her to different countries, but she was going to talk about where she was doing some jungle filming.

She works with more people, including three cameramen and one local guide, which is positive since the of the filming gear is 50 kg, so the load can be shared.

That day Jamie –the presenter– had to photograph a type of frog, which was pretty exciting to Rita due to the fact that she could held the animal.

They wanted to film Jamie abseiling and, for this, they had to walk a lot in order to get to their location –a thirty-meter high

For lunch that day, some of the crew tucked into chicken legs and cheese sandwiches, but Rita's sandwich had in it, which was great.

After lunch, they headed off to a river for Jamie's next challenge, but they made sure to bring a to spot the crocodiles that lived there.

After finding a safe place to film and having some light issues, Jamie found a crocodile whose was three metres.

In spite of that last hardship, Jamie got to cross the river. However, when the program is aired, it can be seen how Jamie was, which is unusual since he is always relaxed on the screen.
