

Objetivo: Ubicar Chile y alguno de sus países vecinos en el mapa de América del Sur.

Arrastra los nombres de países y colócalo en el territorio que corresponde.

A map of South America is shown with several empty rectangular boxes placed over different countries for labeling. The boxes are located in the following approximate positions: one in the north-central region (Venezuela), one in the north-east region (Guyana), one in the west-central region (Peru), one in the south-central region (Argentina), one in the south-east region (Brazil), and one in the far south (Chile). A compass rose is located in the top right corner of the map area, showing the cardinal directions: N (North), S (South), E (East), and O (West), along with the intercardinal directions: NO (Northwest), NE (Northeast), SO (Southwest), and SE (Southeast).
