Grammar: The words nothing, anything, something, and everything are indefinite pronouns for things. These are singular words, used with a singular verb.

nothing

We can use it at the beginning of a sentence as the subject or as the object of a sentence.

Example: My friends went white water rafting. They did nothing there. Nothing was done.

everything

means all things. This can be used in positive/negative sentences and questions.

Example: My brother is going to go hiking. He can do everything. It sounds great.

something

We use it in positive sentences and questions when they are offers or requests.

Example: We are going to go canyoning. We have done something similar. It sounds exciting

anything

We use it in positive sentences, questions, and negative feeling sentences.

Example: Like tubing in Mindo. Go down a river on a tube. Is there anything else?
