Hear their heartbeat	stretched over black and blue
We hear their hearts beat	In the trees our sons stand naked
	In the rain we see their tears
	Midnight, our sons and daughters
And hear their heartbeat	In the wind we hear their laughter
We hear their hearts beat	Night hangs like a prisoner
	We see their tears in the rainfall
We hear their heartbeat	Through the walls our daughters cry
We hear their hearts beat	were cut down, taken from us
