Questions 12 to 15 refer to the following text.

Tarakan is the only city in North Kalimantan, Indonesia's 34th and newest province, and therefore is an important stop for anything planning on exploring the Borneo jungle. It is also one of the most remote regions in the entire country. Its primary tourist attraction is the complete and utter lack of tourists. The jungle is in charge out here, and it is not something be underestimated. As the saying here goes, "Getting into North Kalimantan is hard. Getting out is even harder." Locals use the rivers to get around, which means that although the jungle is too thick for trekking, there are plenty of rivers to explore.

Rides on local boats can be booked cheaply and easily although some knowledge of basic Indonesian will go a long way as foreign tourism to the area is still basically non-existent. It is also possible to charter private boats, and while these are not cheap, they do allow for much more convenience.

Along these rivers are a few small villages and collections of stilt houses. This is an ideal destination for photographers and nature lovers alike. However, if relying on public transportation, make sure to bring a small bag of supplies. Although there is no guarantee that you'll be able to catch a boat back the same day, rest assured that the locals are friendly and it will be easy to find somewhere to rest your head for the night.

The following text is for questions 27 and 29

Once upon a time, there was a girl named Pina, lived on a fruit plantation with her mother. When her mother worked night and day, little Pina would spend all her time playing with her friends. When her mother asked her to do something, she would always reply that she couldn't find things, even if it was laying right in front of her eyes.

One day, her mother fell ill and couldn't even get up to cook some food. So, she asked Pina to cook some rice. However, Pina being her lazy self, said "I can't find the pot, so where should I put the rice? Her mother told her where the pot was. Then she said, where is the ladle, how am I going to cook without a ladle?". Again, her sick mother had to tell her exact location. Pina did the same with salt, rice, and water! Enraged by Pina's behavior, her mother said, "May you grow a thousand eyes" and went back to sleep.

When she woke up, she could not find her daughter. She searched and searched, and so did every person on the plantation. When Pina's mother saw the fruit, she was immediately reminded of Pina's beautiful brown eyes and thus, the fruit with a thousand eyes was named "Pinya", meaning pineapple in Tagalog.

Dino: Hi, my sister. Are you doing your assignment?

Dina: Yes. This is so boring. I want to go to school again.

Dino: Let's pray that this pandemic will end soon.

Dina: Is the virus really dangerous?

Dino: Yes, Dina. WHO even declares Covid-19 a pandemic.

Dina: Really? That's why we have to stay at home?

Dino: Yes. Because we can easily get infected if we make contact with other people outside. Who knows that someone get infected? That's why we must stay at home and avoid direct contact with people, except our family at home.

Dina: It's so sad. I miss my friends.

Dino: Yes, I miss my friends, too. But we must obey the rules and keep ourselves safe.

Dina: Okay. Mom said we also have to exercise and eat healthy foods, right?

Dino: Absolutely! You're smart, Dina.
