Racoons Adaptations

Label the structural adaptions S and behavioural adaptations B - both SB

Homeostasis is the ability to maintain a constant temperature – Zebras need fur to protect them from blood flies. However, the fur can't be too thick otherwise Zebras will over heat.	sucking
Choose from the responses below to complete the statements.
Zebras live in an environment that is always They are covered in	which is flies but adaptation) confuses predators like lions, and makes it difficult for them to hunt.
Polar Bears live in an environment which is slippery. They have that helps them This adaptation gives Polar Bears good traction, and makes it easier for them to move aro Polar Bears have white fur which is a adaptation that helps them to in their environment. This plus an help help bears to find, surprise and catch their prey. Female Polar Bears dig dens which is similar to find, surprise and catch their prey.
hibernation. This is a adaptation that helps their cubs survive in the ha	rsh arctic where they live.

