2) Reading comprehension

I am a member of the debate team at my school. Recently, we had an important debate. For a long time, there has been a ban on students using smartphones during class. The school administration has been considering this rule.

The administration was divided about this issue. They decided to ask the debate team to debate it. They split the team into two sides. I was on the side for changing the rules. The other side was for continuing the ban. We had one week to prepare our arguments.

Our side made several good points. First, we argued that students can use their smartphones for education. They can do research, find definitions, and use the calculator on their phones. Second, changing the rule would be a good way to teach self-discipline. Only educational uses of smartphones are to be allowed in class. If students use their phone for non-education purposes, their phones should be taken away.

Finally, changing the rules would make the teacher's job easier. They would not have to collect and return phones every day. They also would not need to wait for students to take out and put away various stationary items. Everything they need is on their phones.

Our side convinced some of the teachers to change their minds. The next week the administration voted on the issue. They decided to change the rules.
