College is an exciting time to learn and to make friends. Many students do not like to worry about money, and do not want to think about it. Their parents may pay for everything, or they may work parttime to help pay for their education. However, all students can have problems with money if they're not careful.

The cost of a college education can be high. In the US, college fee can be more than $15,000.

Students must also pay for books, paper, pens, which can cost $500, plus accommodation and food. Add money for clothes, travel, and other personal things, and the amount of money for one year at university can be $20,000 to $30,000, or more.

Students need to spend their money carefully. At most universities, they are advised to do this. At the start of a school semester, they should write down the money they will get from their family or from a part-time job. Then they should list all of the money they have to spend and add it together. If it is more than their income, they may need to borrow from family or friends, or get more money by doing part-time work. So there is more to learn at college than just what is taught in the classroom!
