How is social media helping or harming people?

Despite having so many advantages, social media is also often said to be one of the most harmful elements in society. Social media invades the privacy of people like no other form of communication ever did before. Often children and people, who over-share on social media, fall prey to predators like bullies and hackers. The mental health of people is affected significantly because of cyber-bullying on social media. The addiction to social media is a serious matter of concern that many youths face. Addiction to social media leads to an increase in anxiety, hampering of studies, and, most importantly, a waste of time.
