

2 Listen and read. Then look at the pictures. Which show villages, towns, or cities?

Almost every country in the world has cities, towns, and villages. In cities, the population is usually over 300,000 people. They have many buildings and roads.

Towns usually have over 1,000 people. They are smaller than cities, and their roads are not as wide as city roads.

Villages usually have 1,000 people or fewer. They have a few small buildings and roads, and often have more natural areas such as rivers.
